Matt has spent his career dealing with connectivity. Starting at the age of 20 in IBM, he has mastered many roles, from designing networks and process orchestration systems through to managing transformation programmes to automate the repetitive.

As a dad of two beautiful girls his viewpoint on life has changed somewhat. With an appetite to use technology to improve the world for future generations rather than focusing it on immediate commercial gains.

Matt loves open and honest communication, respect for others and empowering people to find their own solutions to challenges.

Sero has a great ethos with a simple goal to make the world a cleaner place to live. Matt is extremely proud to be a part of the team helping to achieve that goal.

When Matt isn't working he loves to be outside enjoying the fresh air. Running and dog walking, and in the warmer months you'll often find the Kane family on a weekend camping trip near the coast.
